

EVOIL[®] CALENDULA

PRODUCT DATA SHEET

CALENDULA is native to southern Europe and Egypt, but is now grown throughout temperate regions of the world.

Historically, CALENDULA (Calendula officinalis) has been used to treat various skin diseases, ranging from skin ulcerations to eczema and it was considered beneficial for reducing inflammation, for healing wounds and burns and as an antiseptic.

Calendula is a traditional Mediterranean skin care ingredient used to help preserve skin freshness, protect skin from over-drying, sun-induced wrinkles and sun caused aging during summer time. When used regularly the oil imparts deep olive shine to the skin, helps protect skin from age related thinning and drying out. Anti-aging properties of Calendula oil, known already to ancient Egyptians, may be related to the high content and diversity of carotenes, phytosterols, polyphenols, saponins, polysaccharides and EFAs. Calendula flowers are high in Vitamin A and the medicinal component calendulin.

The British Herbal Pharmacopoeia states that the flowers are used for enlarged or inflamed lymph nodes, sebaceous cysts, duodenal ulcers and inflammatory skin lesions.

EVOIL[®] CALENDULA restores dry, dehydrated, and mature skin. Skin problems, especially eczema and psoriasis, respond to its high content of active ingredients. EVOIL[®] CALENDULA is presented in a vegetable oil base.
