Chemical distributor OQEMA opens new laboratory with competence centre in Cologne

- The OQEMA Group strengthens its service offering with state-of-the-art laboratory across 120 sq. m
- The affiliated competence centre is designed for technical training, customer seminars and conferences

Cologne, 23 September, 2019

The OQEMA Group is strengthening its service offering with a new laboratory for product development in Cologne. The state-of-the-art laboratory is focused on our existing surface technology business in Germany, whilst also developing our business further in industrial applications, with an initial focus on our paints and coatings, construction and lubricants business across the European OQEMA Group.

Our customers benefit from a wide range of services relating to product development and application. We assist our customers and suppliers with technical support and develop new products according to the individual requirements of our customers.

James Berwick, Group Director Specialities: 'The new OQEMA laboratory and competence centre in Cologne will enhance the ability of the European specialities business to refine further our customer and supplier propositions.'

The large competence centre for training and conferences is attached to the laboratory. Winfried Plitzko, Managing Director of OQEMA Cologne, is pleased about the new opportunities the location offers to customers and suppliers: 'Our focus is the development of effective and innovative products that fit the needs of our customers. The new competence centre gives us the opportunity to collaborate even more closely with our customers and suppliers: it is designed for customer seminars and supplier workshops with practical application demonstrations, as well as training for our employees.'
